About the Session: A One-day Seminar on Modern Concepts in Agriculture was organized on 4th December 2017 in the Conference Hall, School of Management, Paralakhemundi Campus. The inaugural session began with the lighting of lamps and invocation. Prof. K. Prasad Rao, Director, Research and Extension, MSSSoA, in his opening remarks emphasized on the mechanization of modern agriculture. Prof. Ramana Murthy, Head, Agriculture Research Station, Ragolu, Andhra Pradesh spoke on the farmer needs, and intensification and diversification of farming to increase productivity. Prof. Murthy highlighted how different institutions are marching forward to adopt villages, and integrating technology to offer solutions. “Information Technology (IT) + Agriculture Technology (AT) = Mighty” was the punchline of his talk to improve the agriculture sector. Prof. Aftab Zaman, Professor (Emeritus), MSSSoA delivered a talk on Sustainable Agriculture - The Modern Concepts. Prof. Zaman said sustainable agriculture is not a single word, it maintains equilibrium in agriculture production, and it is an interaction between ecology and environment where soil health is a major factor. 15 papers on modern concepts of agriculture were presented by the students in the technical session of the Seminar. Prof. S.P Nanda, Dean Administration, MSSSoA offered felicitations to the Chief Guest. Vote of thanks was offered by Ms. G. Prameela with a special mention to HoDs, Faculty, MSSSoA and Dr. Susant Kumar Patnaik, Dean Student Affairs for the support and guidance.

Objective:

- To highlight the different modern concepts of Agriculture such as sustainable agriculture, precision agriculture, diversification of farming etc.

Outcome: The seminar concluded with an expression of hope for similar opportunities to deepen the participants' academic interests.
