About the resource person:

Dr. Rita Rani Bhattacharjee is a Counselling Psychologist by Profession and Head of the Department of Counselling Division, VIT, Vellore, Tamil Nadu, India. She has an experience of 20 years in teaching Psychology and Counselling Students in medical as well as engineering institutions. She has initiated Counselling Service in an engineering college at Odisha, India. She has been a great motivator for students of various institutions and is a life member of psychological associations too. She has added journals to her credit in various national and international levels. At present, she is leading a group of mental health professionals at VIT, Vellore. Counselling is her passion and she believes that everyone has their potential to make wonders in life.

Objectives of the programme:

Students can engage in problematic behaviors because of health problems, personal or family problems, adjustment or developmental issues (e.g., “immaturity” or self-esteem issues), or general academic difficulties. These factors are not controllable, but instructors who feel those are issues are at play can certainly refer students to the appropriate support services on campus
