Panchatantra is believed to be in existence for more than five thousand years. Because of its relevance to the society, it has been told and retold in various culture, societies and countries. And they keep on guiding the society through various stories. It tells us the way to conduct oneself and how to distinguish the good from the evil.

The teachings of Bishnu Sharma through various stories are combined to form the book of Panchatantra. In this book various animal characters are used to make the teaching interesting to the princes who were children, whereas the main objective was to explain the behaviour of the various kinds and types of people living in the society and how to deal with these people in our day-to-day life as the circumstances arise.

This book contains selected stories from Panchatantra.
